NEW ORLEANS, LA., September 9.—
The chief interest in the yellow fever situation was the report of infection at Baton Rouge, and the fact that although only one case had appeared there, numbers of people had taken the north-bound train to-day out of fear that the sickness would spread.

Since the fever appeared in New Orleans the State Capitol has been bettled up, permitting no communication with New Orleans. The Baton Rouge patient is Aaron Block, son of a prominent citizen. Quarantines were immediately put on by surrounding tewns.

Though the number of new cases in New Orleans to-day was again disappointing the death report was favorable. Chairman Janley announced to-day that the citizens' fund had reached $135,423, and that the first will be kept open until the fever is declared over. With the $150,000 placed at the disposal of Dr. White by the city and State the total fund he has had to draw on exceeds $225,000.

Additional nurses were sent to Tallulah and Kenner to-day. Owing to the calls that have been made by the courlah and Kenner to-day. Owing to the calls that have been made by the country, the supply of nurses has run low, but unless there are further unexpected demands it is probable that the State Board will be able to provide the help that is needed.

CLASH IN ATLANTA.

Officer of State Board Hustled Away By City Police.

Away By City Police.

(By Associated Press.)

ATLANTA, GA., September 9.—The first conflict between State and city health authorities occurred at an early hour to-day on an Atlanta and West Point Railroad train. Dr. H. F. Harris, Secretary of State Board, boarded the train at Red Oak and underfoot to prevent the entrance into the city of several refuses from Pensecola and infected points in Louisiana and Mississippi. When the train reached Atlanta Dr. Harris was not visible, but Mayor Woodward with a squad of city police was in evidence. When he learned that refuses, who had been examined previously by the city's inspector sought to stop here he welcomed them and figuratively handed them the keys of the city. A special car attached to the train carrying refuses bound for Asheville, was not molested as the State Board does not bar passage through the city or State of this class of passengers.

The result of this clash of authority is not yet apparent. The State officials say that any interference with their quarantine will meet with prompt punichment.

NELSON AND BRITT AS THEY APPEARED IN RING YESTERDAY

PREDICTIONS OF FIGHTERS AND HOW THEY WERE VERIFIED

BEFORE THE FIGHT. NELSON.

"I am just as confident as ever that I can defeat Britt. I would have done the trick in our last battle had we fought twenty-five rounds. I am glad that we are to go forty-five rounds this time, as it will give me time to get into my strides. It will be all over with Britt after the first fifteen or twenty rounds."

BRITT.

"I am glad that my bout with Nelson is only a few hours off. I am anxious to show my friends that I am Nelson's superier. I heat him on points the last time we fought, but to-morrow nothing will suit me but a knockout. I don't think it will require the forty-five rounds to decide the winner. I expect to win long before the limit."

AFTER THE FIGHT

NELSON.

"I fought my usual fight, and I beat Britt with the same punch I have always used. I thought I had him in the sixth round, but he showed a wonderful amount of vitality, and came back so strong that I could not finish him then. "I wore myself out more by chasing him around the ring than by anything else. I started him going in the eighteenth round with a left joit to the jaw. Then I saw an opening for the stomach and whipped right and left in. Then the fight was over."

BRITT.

"I will take my hat off to Battling Nelson. He knocked me out, and I have no exceuses to offer. I think we put up the greatest fight that the people of San Francisco ever saw. I fought him rough and tumble, and I thought I could beat him at his own game, but that left to the jaw in the eighteenth round started me going, and after that I can remember nothing. I had him going several times, and the gong saved him. I never was in better condition, and I had a good punch in either hand."

BY EDDIE GRANEY, THE REFEREE.

"It was the greatest battle I ever saw. Both men commenced to fight as soon as they entered the ring, and they never let up till the final punch was landed. Nelson showed he is a sturdier boy than Britt, and his wonderful vitality and ability to take an awful beating carried him through.

"The best man won. Britt was never in better shape in his life, and has no excuse to offer. Nelson showed he is Jimmy's master, and can beat him any time he wishes. Had Britt fought a cleverer fight instead of resorting to rough tactics, the result might have been different, but he chose his own path, and was beaten fairly and squarely."

of three minutes brought the vast crowd to its feet and kept it there throughout the round. The fighters slugged each other casselessly. Both were bleeding and weary, but always game. In the last minute of the sixth Nelson suddenly took the lead, and getting Britt in a corner beat him about the body and face until he went weaving about the ring vainly tying to protect himself. Britt took a terrice beating about the body, unable for the time to block Nelson's blows, but in a fisish Britt took a brace. He set himself in the middle of the ring and met Nelson with two punching swings to the in the middle of the ring and met Nelson with two punching swings to the face. Nelson haliced and Briti leaped forward, He slugged and swung in one last desperate effort, but again the gong ended the round, like the previous critical one, at an opportune time for Nelson. In the eighth Nelson had Britt in trouble, glaggering the Californian with a left, and driving him to the ropes. Brit's seconds were in a frenzy, shouting all sorts of orders, Above all was the voice of "Spider" Nelly, who shouted "cover up Jimmy," Jimmy obeyed and probably saved himself from going down in this round.

Measurements of Fighters.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 3.—it is learned from attorneys that no habeas corpus proceedings will be instituted in the case of the four Central Hospitul attendants in fall here charged with killing Thomas Nail. He says it is only a fortnight before court begins, and that attorneys for the Mednesday the investigation of the treatment of Nail will begin before the hospitul diffectors, and that attorneys for the four men charged with the crime desire to be present if the investigation is public.

Five cases go before Judga Purnell, of the Federal court, here. Monday, to test the State law giving police justices power to sentence without fory trials. Attorney General Gilmer will look after the State in this important case, and City Attorney Snow after Raleigh's interests.

set far apart to steady himse; onco more, he met Nelson with full-arm swings, finally forcing the Dane to clinch. The gong sounded while iney were standing head to head, slashing at each other with both hands.

at each other with both hands.

Then thousand men rose and cheered the boxers. The desperate struggle in the fourteenth round compelled both men to slow up in the next two rounds and no decisive work was done by either, though Nelson showed more strength Nelson showed more strength er they came to a clinch.

The End.

The seventeenth was Nelson's by a good margin. The eighteenth proved the end for Britt. A detailed account of the round, which lasted about two minutes, shows little difference from the preceding rounds. Britt was tired, but game and willing. Nelson forced him about the ring and gave many body flows, always boring in. He cornered Britt and drove him against propes. Britt squirmed out and sent in a terrific left to the stomach that appeared to hurt Nelson. Nelson covered his body and Britt swung for his face.

Quick as a flash, Nelson sent in a short, sharp, left-hand blow to Britt's stomach. He gave way and stepped back, crouching to deceive Nelson and give himself thus to recover. Nelson saw the damage his blow had inflicted, however, and pressed on. He forced Britt into his own corner, and there in a rally that lasted only a few moments the end came. Britt went down suddenly. Nelson says it was from a blow on the Jaw. Britt had no clear idea after the fight what put him out, but in the opinion of those who were close by it was the blow in the stomach that took all his remaining strength, and he fell from exhaustion.

When Britt fell in his own corner, flat on his face, there was a momentary hush, and the voice of the official timer was heard distinctly, counting off the seconds. Britt turned at his back and lay gasping. his bloody tongue protruding from his negating the counted when there was a roar from the crowd, which saw that the little San Francisco boy could not rise. "Nine, ton!" shouted the timer. Graney pointed to Nelson, and the roar from the crowd increased.

Crowd Orderly.

Crowd Orderly.

Contrary to expectations, the crowd of Contrary to expectations, the crowd of 9,000 men and a score of women at the ring-side was orderly. The stubborn metion of Nelson's manager, which left the public in doubt up to the last minute, probably is responsible for the crowd's failing below expectations, and made the total receipts about $00,000, instead of $70,000.

SKETCHES OF THE FIGHTERS.

Britt Tiring Fast.

After the eighth, Britt appeared to the fast. The pace was slower and in Nelson's favor. In the tenth and the eleventh Nelson continued to wear out Britt. In the twelfth Britt railled suddenly and batter, and took most of the blows on the nose, ear, or stounch. Britt wore himself out and snished the round thred. It became evident to Britt's seconds after the twelfth round that their man was being besten. They sought to bolster his wavering confidence with cheer-ful remarks, but Britt appeared to realize that he was beaten, in the thirteenth Britt took a beating with gameness.

Britt only the fight, Nelson, knowing Britt was tiring fast, had before him the determination to end the battle. In five seconds ha had Britt singgering about, his guard lowered, and all but out. Time and again Nelson planted left-hand blows on Britt's face, firling the left took the fight heyond this round.

Big Fire in Chicago Does Damage Amounting to $725,000.

CHICAGO, ILL., September 9.—The Santa Fe elevator containing $5.00 bushels of grain, was destroyed by fire here to-day; loss, $725,000.
The fire is thought to have been started

to-day; loss, $7.5,039.

The fire is thought to have been started by spontaneous combustion in a wheat bin on the top story. An explosion was heard by several workmen, who hurried to that floor. When they arrived they saw flames issuing from one of the bins. Efforts were made to extinguish the fire, but after a short fight the men were forced to fee from the building. Meantime the fire department had been notified, but before the first detachment arrived the flames had mad a way to the first floor of the building and were beyond control.

The elevator is controlled by Harris-Scotten Company, grain brokers, and was valued at $50,009. Forty or more grain ears were standing on as ide track near the building when the fire started. Engines were called and these were moved, under heavy risk by the train crews. None of the cars burned.

The Delineator for October.
From the artistle viewpoint, as well as that of fashion, the October Delineator will keep the high standard it has attained as a woman's magazine. About sixty pages, many in color, are devoted to the styles of the month, additional space being devoted to the New York and Parls fushions, set forth with chic and individuality by Helen Berkeley-Loyd and Edouard La Fontaine. The literary side, household topics and special features are on an unusual plane of excellence.

Of widespread interest to parents, teachery and all who lead or follow in educational lines is an excentional article, "Education for Life through Living," by William H. Maxwell, Superintendent of New York City Schools; needless to say, the information that comes from Dr. Maxwell's pen is the result of ripe experience and close observation.

Mr. Paine's story, "The Lucky, Piect," holds the attention awakened by the preceding chapters, and the interest decens as the denoument approaches; several short stories. "The Division Fence" and "The Call of the Buil-Bat," furnish interesting fiction.

Stories and pastimes for children include another chapter of "Son Riley Rabbit," that has delighted so many little ones, suggestions for Hallowe'en amusements, and other subjects of juvenile interest. Of widespread interest to menta, and other subjects of juyenile interest.

The third installment of Miss Winslow's "At Spinster Parm" exhales the freshness and fragrance of wood and meadow, at the same time appealing to the natural home-longing. N. Hudson Moore writes interestingly of old desks and secretaries, giving the hall-marks that enable the amateur to place them correctly: Allan Sutherland tells the history of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the hymn that is the inspiration of the young; Cliffon Johnson takes the reader across the wild coast of Devon into the wilder country that was Lorna Doone's.

The marketing of milk is a vital public question in that it deals with the health, and consequently the life, of the child; it is of deep interest to the city dweller, and his demands require the farmer or dairyman to observe hysenic laws in the production and marketing of milk. In this issue Mrs. Mary Hinman Abel discusses the milk question in various phases. The title of another article, "Club Women and the Food Question," shows something of how the campaign instituted in the interest of pure food has spread. Dr. Grace Peckham Murray continues the discussion of "The Rights of the Child," telling of the importance of sleen. A timely subject is "Hardy Bulbs for October Planting," by Ward Macleod, indicating the many beautiful ilowers to be had as a result of the autuum planting of hulbs. MRS. MARY GRIFFIS.

"I have taken Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey for almost one year, and I can truthfully and conscientiously recommend it to everyone as the best medicine for weak and aged people. One year ago last winter I was taken very seriously ill with what the doctors called hemorrhages and consumption of the liver. From February to the latter part of May. I could not turn over in bed, and was almst as helpless as a baby. I was a more skeleton. I was advised to take Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey, and it ecritally is better than any medicine I ever took. To-day, at 64, I am in perfect health, and never have to call on a physician. Duffy's is my constant medicine, and I never will be without it."—MRS. MARY GRIFFIS, Albion, Pa. May 24, 1905.

At Radein, in "Fyrol, not very far from Moran, there lived in a small but an eestatics Italian girl of the name of Angelica Darocca. It is asserted that for seven years she took neither food nor drink, and this will not appear improbable to those who know that such hysterical persons obtain their powerful nourishment by vampirizing their visitors, as they are regarded and treated as wonder-workers and saints. This girl also had the "stigmata," and on certain days she was sweating drops of blood; for which reason she was visited by many plous people, and especially by the Catholle clergy.

Though there were most alarming rumors, some of tham to the effect that the artars were about to sweep the troops from Baku altogether, in circuitation in St. Petersburg, a majority of the dispatches, including those to oil headquarters here, indicated that the riotyers had made no headway in their attempts at incendarism in the city in the "black town" quarter, where comparative order was restored, and only occasional shots were being fired. Several banks had reopened.

Oil men, escorted by troops, were able for the first time to visit the oil felds which for four days had been practically in the hands or the tarrars. They report scenes of indescribable destruction, about three-quarters of the property there, they say, was burned to the ground, and plundering and incendiarism continue.
